

The word Business and Commerce without World-Wide Web.

In business without WWW, there's a big difference. Because having an offline business is a little difficult. In fact business can still work without internet, it's says that there a many ways to be successful. Without WWW we can still communicate to people, and we can also advertise or promote our product talking to them even thou we selected a randomly people. But the disadvantage of having an offline business is that it will spend too much money. Like printing a flyer or poster unlike having an online that just post it in the website (example: Facebook). It's a multi-tasking, that's why so much effort to exert through that. Like for what I observed before, those businesswomen or businessman went to other places just to sell their products and also to advertise. But the good thing is they can show or demonstrate their product. But there's still a risk if they will buy it or not.

In e-commerce, the advantage of it is that your personal information is secured while in online is that we are not assured that this is protected or not because nowadays are so many people who hack our privacy information especially in the bank. Also people are confident to purchase the product in offline, because they assure that its secured. But disadvantages of having an offline ecommerce is that it consume too much time or days to deliver the package, sometimes it's take a month or a year. Also the disadvantage of delivering a package is that there's item that are missing and not able to sell the product directly. Ecommerce still works without WWW. In fact it's the safeties way, without forging information of the customers. But it's still not all the ecommerce company is safety.
